Batteries Plus phone repair

No matter which iPhone model you have, issues like a cracked screen or dead battery can prevent you from listening to music, navigating apps, and using email. If the need arises, Tech Renu can help make your iPhone function like new again in notime.

Your iPhone battery is designed to last hours in-between charges, but a battery that won't hold a charge can put a significant damper on your productivity. Here are five indications that you may need an iPhone battery replacement:

The ease of communicating and navigating with the touch of a button can be a challenge when your home button isn't working properly. However, it's not uncommon for buttons to develop issues after frequent use. If your home button becomes stuck, consider getting your iPhone home button repaired.

When you take your iPhone with you everywhere you go, there's always a chance of dropping it on the ground at some point. Not only is a cracked screen unsightly to look at, there may be other implications to worry about. Before you decide to hold off on scheduling iPhone screen repair, consider the following risks:

Come to our East London workshop and get your iPhone, iPad and iPod repair While You Wait. We are based on Cranbrook road in Ilford, around a 4-minute walk from Ilford Train Station. Our Mail-in service covers the entire UK. Just send us your device and we'll repair it the day that we receive it and have it back to you the following day using Royal Mail Delivery. Your device will be fully insured.

We lovingly return our customers' faulty or damaged iPhones, iPads and iPods to a happy, working condition. We aim to do so quickly and efficiently, all the while ensuring a hassle- and stress-free experience for you. We're based in East London, but we repair devices for people all over the UK (and even Europe).

Never before have we been so dependent on our mobile devices. In fact, we use them to such an extent that they have become integrated into our daily lives. People of all ages are now joining this new mobile generation.

But when things go wrong, it can be a real problem. I founded iCrack because there was clear lack of choice about where to get devices repaired. Either pay extortionate rates from the manufacturers or "try your luck" with a local repair shop where the staff are not always well trained, the parts may not be of a good standard and usually there is no warranty.

iCrack is about giving you a better choice. We provide you with the highest standard of repair, class leading customer service and the best value for money in the market. All of which is backed by our No Quibble Lifetime Warranty.

Quality of repair is critical to our reputation. There are many unscrupulous repair centre's operating across the UK. Whether they fit inferior quality parts, have untrained technicians or back out of warranty agreements, it can be a minefield. At iCrack, we are clear and honest about what we do and how we do it. Most of our business is generated by referral and word of mouth so it is in our interests to ensure our customers are happy all the time.
