When the colder months roll in, winter tyres emerge as the ultimate choice for safety and reliability on snowy and icy roads. These purpose-built tyres are designed to navigate the challenging driving conditions brought about by wet roads, frigid temperatures, and heavy snowfall. Winter tyres have long been a staple and a legal necessity in numerous continental European countries.

Having the right tyres fitted to your vehicle will provide you with increased performance in terms of traction control and handling, significantly reducing the risk of an accident when driving in winter conditions.

et tyres recommend changing all four tyres to winter tyres; a car fitted with just two can actually be more dangerous as it becomes unbalanced, resulting in unsafe handling. This recommendation on fitting all 4 tyres with winter/snow tyres is supported by the national TyreSafe scheme and leading tyre manufacturers including Continental, Michelin and Pirelli.

For more information on the recommended winter tyres for your vehicle click on the guides below. You can even take advantage of our mobile tyre fitting service and home delivery service so you don't have to leave the house.

M+S is a mud and snow tyre. These tyres feature a tread pattern and compound that has been specifically designed to perform well in poor road conditions and low temperatures. A mud and snow tyre will usually have a high negative void ratio and aggressive tread pattern in order to achieve optimum grip. Additionally, the mud and snow specially designed rubber compound means that the tyre won't lose its flexibility in cold conditions. The mud and snow tyres are great for off-road terrains and are available to suit a range of vehicles and models.

Continental developed their SSR (self-supporting run-flat) technology for low-section tyres that can fit all standard rims. Continental run-flat tyres are available in the treads below.

We highlight all run-flat tyres using RFT regardless of manufacturer naming conventions. Big-name brands include Continental, Michelin, Bridgestone and Goodyear. You can also have these fitted by our mobile tyre fitting service.
